ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE.

Unsynchronized clock-domain crossings in the design of integrated circuit are detected by searching for clock-crossing domains. For each clock-crossing that does not include an explicit synchronization cell, an analysis determines if the clock is stable crossing the domains.